

Stockholm 21st June 2017

Bill Beatty,

As CEO of Q Tech Games ("Q Tech") I have been informed by several of our partner companies of your enquiries regarding their business relations with Q Tech.

First and foremost, the business relationship between Q Tech and our partners are of course trade secrets and not something we or our partners are going to comment on.

Furthermore, your referencing of Mr. Robert Gustafsson as the owner to Q Tech is simply not true. I do not know why or on what grounds you perceive him as the owner of Q Tech but please note that you have been misinformed.

Notwithstanding the scarcity of truth to your statement, I regard your unfounded statement as intentionally malicious and strongly recommend you to terminate any and all vilification of Q Tech and/or its affiliates. I will also emphasise that any published article containing false or misleading information regarding Q Tech or its partners will be considered intentional defamation of Q Tech which, of course, will necessitate legal action on behalf of Q Tech. Such actions will if necessary include, without being limited to, lawsuits in every conceivable forum against yourself as Editor-in-Chief as well as CalvinAyre.com and other physical or judicial persons associated with spreading deceitful information regarding Q Tech.

Lastly, should there be any articles published on CalvinAyre.com or any affiliated sites containing deceitful information of Q Tech, we will implement necessary measures to put into action a worldwide blockage of the domain CalvinAyre.com.

Sincerely,

Jonas Alm, CEO
Q Tech Games
